A Talk with Andy Raia

Andy Raia talks with The Leader at T.K.'s Galley Restaurant in Halesite.

By Maureen Daly

The Leader met this week with Assemblyman Andrew Raia, who is running to succeed his mother Jo-Ann Raia, as the Huntington Town Clerk.

We met at TK's Galley cafe in Halesite, with a sumpuous brunch of eggs, bacon, canadian bacon and blueberry and corn muffins laid out by TK and his helpful staff.

Andy Raia opened by telling us that after serving for 38 years, his mom, Jo-Ann Raia, is retiring. Andy was in eighth grade when his mom was first elected to the position of Town Clerk. He remembers constituents telephoning the home and even stopping by in person to obtain death certificates and voice concerns to his mom. Andy fondly remembers his mom's 'marathon Valentine's Day weddings,' a tradition he plans to continue if elected.

Andy does not consider himself a politician, but rather a public servant. He believes that if he succeeds in November's election that he will be on the front lines dealing directly with his constituents. He looks forward to being caretaker of his mother's legacy as a "great public servant." One of Andys goals if elected includes saving constituents the trip to the town clerk's office. He plans the allowing of credit card payments to be processed online.

Andy was born and raised in Huntington - spending his early years in Fiddler's Green in Lloyd Neck.

After graduating from the State University of New York at New Paltz; he started his professional career as a staff member in legislative offices of the State Assembly, the New York State Senate, and the Suffolk County Legislature. Elected to the New York State Assembly in 2002, he is currently serving his 9th term in the New York State Legislature. He serves as the Ranking Minority Member of the Assembly Health Committee and is also a member of the Environmental Conservation, Insurance, Housing, and Rules Committees.

Assemblyman Raia's long-standing commitment to his constituents and tenure within the New York State legislature have helped him become a leader within the Assembly. He is currently serving as the Assistant Minority Leader, the Minority representative on the Legislative Council on Health Care Financing, and a member of the Budget Conference Committee on Health. In 2017 he was named the NYS Association of Health Care Providers' 2017 Elected Official of the Year.

Assemblyman Raia now represents the 12th Assembly District which spans the Towns of Huntington, Babylon, and Islip.

In addition to spending his entire professional career in public service, Assemblyman Raia has also served on the Executive Boards of the Huntington Boys and Girls Club, Huntington Freedom Day Care Center, Huntington Station Enrichment Center, Katherine Gibbs, Perspectives on Youths; and Helping Hands.

He is a member of the Northport Historical Society, the Babylon Historical Society, the Huntington Historical Society and the Greenlawn-Centerport Historical Society. Andrew Raia also belongs to many different social organizations which have strong commitments to community service, including the Knights of Columbus Father Thomas A. Judge Council in East Northport where he serves as a Third Degree Knight; the Sons of Italy Constantino Brumidi Lodge in Deer Park; the New York State Conference of Italian-American Legislators; and the Chamber of Commerce.

He is an honorary board member for the Suffolk County Coalition Against Domestic Violence and Building Homes for Heroes. Assemblyman Raia graduated from the Leadership Huntington Foundation Program and was named one of its Graduates of Distinction in 2017. Additionally, he was Long Island Business News' 2008, 40 under 40 Honoree. He also remains an ongoing advocate for programs benefiting our youth including the Boy Scouts of America and the Girl Scouts of America. Andy is an avid boater and fisherman who loves the outdoors. He feels we are "blessed to live in the one of the nicest communities in America."

As Assemblyman, Andy has been honored to be his constituents voice in Albany. If elected to Town Clerk he looks forward to being a strong voice in town hall.

"Save Huntington Village" Hearing

Over 300 attended the Town Board Hearing on Zoning in Huntington Village.

By Elisa Grimaldi

Despite the cold rainy night, over 300 Huntington residents jammed a Town Board Hearing on October 16th, to propose new zoning laws and oppose the over-building of Huntington Village.

The Town Hall meeting, began at 7pm and ran until after midnight. Hundreds of residents organized by the "Save Huntington Village" coalition showed their disapproval to the many ugly apartment complexes that are being built around the downtown.

Town Board members Ed Smyth (R) and Eugene Cook (I) joined Supervisor Chad Lupinacci (R) in proposing new zoning rules - a "New Direction" - to severely limit the number of new apartments - and require adequate new parking - that developers can build in Huntington Village.

The Democrats, in 2003, changed the zoning rules to allow apartments over stores, and in 2015, reduced the requirements for adequate parking for new apartments.

But most residents who spoke, favored even tighter rules than the New Direction proposal. Most residents there proposed new laws to amend the Commercial C6 apartment zoning laws, which aims to reign in apartment buildings sizes and density.

The residents there were supporting tough requirements on zoning changes to limit the building of apartment blocks in Huntington. These requirements are even tougher than the ones previously proposed by Lupinacci.

MaryAnne Hicks, an aide to Councilman Ed Smyth, stated that "residents voiced their opinions," and that Smyth was listening to the residents.

The group "SAVE HUNTINGTON VILLAGE" distributed a flyer, explaining why residents believe that the law needs to be strengthened, or it will "worsen traffic," "further reduce parking" and "increase number of apartments" as some negatives to the situation, and can be seen at "SaveHuntingtonVillage.com."

The proposed zoning changes can be found on the Town's Facebook page (https://www.facebook.com/HuntingtonNewYork)

The North Shore Leader Endorsements

Oyster Bay Supervisor Joe Saladino

Joe Saladino

In a short 2 1/2 years as Oyster Bay Supervisor, Joe Saladino has done amazing things. He has reformed the Town's finances, imposed strict ethics rules, intervened to save entire north shore communities when threatened, and brought energy and personal attention to our communities.

Saladino overhauled the Town's finances, turning a large structural deficit into a surplus. He did this by cutting staff, tightening up contracts and reducing overtime costs - Old-fashioned management. And he has attacked corruption by imposing a tough new ethics code and instituting good-government reforms like "same day building permits." Saladino has also moved to develop downtown Hicksville - the Hicksville Renaissance - which is expected to attract over $1 billion into rehabilitating and replacing decrepit buildings and expanding LIRR parking. And he is tackling the long-running Cerro Wire / Robbins Lane development in Syosset with a community-friendly plan for a retail and light commercial downtown, that will benefit the community while not swamping the schools.

On the north shore, Saladino lead the effort to block the Governor's $56 billion "Cross Sound Tunnel" nightmare, that would have polluted and destroyed downtowns Bayville, Syosset and Oyster Bay with huge ugly exhaust towers and access highways. For that achievement alone, Saladino would deserve re-election.

Saladino's opponent, James Altadonna, has been Town Clerk for the past eight years. A Republican, originally elected as part of former Supervisor John Venditto's team, Altadonna was nominated by the Democrats in a misguided scheme to "split" the vote. Instead, the move upset local Democrats, who wonder why their party leadership couldn't find a real Democrat, but instead pushed a tired, old Republican re-tread on them.

Laura Meier

Joe Saladino has remade the Town Board with fresh new talent, and has assembled the best leadership team in Long Island local government. For all of his very real achievements, the Leader endorses Joe Saladino for Town Supervisor.

Rich LaMarca

Oyster Bay Town Board Vicki Walsh, Steve Labriola and Laura Maier

The three members of Joe Saladino's team are all competent, talented people who add serious value and experience to the Town Board: Laura Maier is an experienced businesswoman with multiple Dairy Queen franchises, and whose husband teaches in the Locust Valley schools; Steve Labriola is a former NYS Assemblyman, Town Clerk and Nassau Deputy Comptroller; Vicki Walsh is a local East Norwich realtor and board member of the Oyster Bay PTA. All three are sincere, thoughtful - and extremely nice - people. They are all deserving of your vote. The Leader endorses Vicki Walsh, Laura Maier and Steve Labriola for Oyster Bay Town Board.

Steve Labriola

Oyster Bay Town Clerk Rich LaMarca

Rich LaMarca has been called "Mr. Oyster Bay" for all his deep involvement and incredible dedication to the local civic life of Oyster Bay. La Marca served as Vice President of a Fortune 500 company. Now, LaMarca is running for the open seat for Town Clerk. LaMarca promises to bring the same energy he demonstrates every day to reforming and updating the Clerk's office. The Leader endorses Rich LaMarca for Oyster Bay Town Clerk

Nassau County Legislature (District 18) - Josh Lafazan

Josh Lafazan is a local political phenomenon: Elected to the Syosset school board at age 18; Elected two years ago as an independent - running as a Democrat - in the predominantly Republican 18th district (Locust Valley, Oyster Bay, north Syosset). And still only 25 years old.

Vicki Walsh

Lafazan has distinguished himself in the Nassau County Legislature with impressive attention to the details of county government - showing real interest in such hyper-local issues as the West Shore Road maintenance - and being truly bi-partisan in working with the county Legislature's Republican majority. Lafazan has not been a rubber-stamp for the often incompetent County Executive Laura Curran (D-Baldwin) administration, but he has cut a truly independent path. And he is easily accessible to constituents and the media alike. The Leader endorses Josh Lafazan for County Legislature.

Locust Valley's 14th Annual Harvest Festival

By christine Loring

On October 19th the Locust Valley Harvest Festival was a great time for all. The crisp sunny weather and the large crowd made it a very cheerful gathering. The children especially had a really good time on the bouncy castle, having their faces painted, and listening, playing along, and dancing to the music.

For 14-years the Locust Valley Chamber of Commerce has had a festival. Locust Valley is a quaint hamlet, a village with lovely buildings, with a great variety of stores and restaurants.

President of the Chamber Len Margolis said, "This year all the hard work putting it together was really worth it! So many people, families and children having such a good time, and it's all free!" For many years, Len has worked with a sense of community pride, and public service, helping to keep the Village thriving.

Locust Valley feels like a big extended family, with people often chatting on porches or calling across the street. The feel of the town is one of comfort and joy. Community is important, so the chamber hosts, and fosters plenty of family events all year round. The Chamber of Commerce is a not-for-profit organization. Kaye Weninger, Secretary and Treasurer of the Chamber, was at the festival, smiling as always, while talking to everyone. Kaye has been isntrumental in many of the beautification projects in town, and also runs Operation Democracy which has Locust Valley as the sister city of Sainte-Mere-Eglise in France.

Many of the stores in the Village were sponsors, and helped to make the festival a joyful event. Included were Firm Atheletics which supplied the Horse & Buggy Rides, Apple Bank offering delicious candy apples, the DJ Music by Soundside Physical Therapy, the Bouncy Castle by the Chamber and Sabrina Boutique, Carol the Clown with Balloon Animals entertaining the kids, by Le Joaillier Fine Jewelry, and Pumpkin Painting by Cosmo Tile & Forest Iron Works.

Many participants at the festival from the surrounding establisments included; Daniel Gale Sotheby's International Realty, Signature Premier Properties and the Locust Valley Library, whom had gift basket raffles. Stores throughout the Village offered discounts and refreshments. All the stores including Locust Valley Bookstore and Karmic Grind, were busy.

Dancing to the rhythm of the music.

Bay Entertainment played all day long.

Having a happy time at the festival.

Big smiles at the Apple Bank treats table!

Last year the weather was not playing fair, and the festival had to be cancelled. The festival this year was a success, thanks to Mother Nature for being kind, and all the wonderful people showing up for this beautiful community event. The Harvest Festival was very well attended.

Drama at GC Christian Church

Tony Wolf

By Victoria Crosby

There was drama, music and comedy, all on the same day, recently at the Glen Cove Christian Church on Walnut Road.

A break in the sewer line caused damage to the church basement, on the day that a comedy performance was planned to take place at the church. A section of Walnut Road was closed while the problem was rectified, but the pastor, Tommy Lanham, was concerned that the odor would make it impossible to hold the event in the church. So he and his wife, Tammy, set up many extra chairs in their living room, just in case. Fortunately, with lots of prayers, the use of air fresheners and windows wide open, the show went on that evening to a packed house.

The Praise Band, the performers who provide the music at each Sunday service, opened with songs of worship. The family friendly comedy of Tony Wolf, who had traveled from Indiana for the event, went on as planned. Wolf is a public speaker and musician, an ordained minister and a youth counselor for twenty years. Tony Wolf had his CDs and books available, as well as information on a project dear to his heart, Compassion International, an organization which sponsors children throughout the world.

It was an evening of laughter, as he has combined his talents into a ministry of comedy.

New Dog Park in Bayville

Supervisor Saladino, Councilman Labriola and Councilwoman Michele Johnson,at the new North Shore Dog Park at Centre Island Beach in Bayville. Also on hand were Senator Jim Gaughran, Bayville Village Mayor Bob DeNatale, Bayville Trustees Pat Farnell and Bob Nigro, Peggy Heijman of dog advocacy group LI-Dog and representatives from Friends for a Bayville Dog Park.

The unveiling of the dog park on the Town's north shore, is located at Centre Island Beach in Bayville. Last year, the Town announced it was the recipient of a state grant to construct the facility.

"This beautiful new dog park shows that we can achieve great things when working together with our local community," said Supervisor Saladino. "I thank Mayor Bob DeNatale and the Village of Bayville, former State Senator Carl Marcellino, and Senator Jim Gaughran for their assistance in seeing this project come to fruition. Our pets are like family, and dog parks provide a great community setting where residents and their pets can gather and socialize."

Councilman Labriola added, "It is so enjoyable to get out and enjoy the nice weather with our pets. I'm so pleased we were able to bring this facility to our Town's north shore, in addition to allowing for leashed pets to visit several local parks in the Town of Oyster Bay."

"I've spoken with many residents who have expressed their desires for a local dog park on our north shore," added Councilwoman Johnson. "Continuing improvements to our parks and recreational facilities continue to be a priority for our Town Board."

The 36th Annual Oyster Festival

Frank M. Flower & Sons donated all the oysters to the festival. Proceeds from their shirt sales goes to a local food pantry.

A replica of Christopher Columbus' Santa Maria.

By Patricia Brexel

This past weekend thousands of people descended opon Oyster Bay for the Oyster Festival. This year's festival almost did not happen, until Blue Point Brewing Company stepped up to the plate as the sponsor. They had a beer garden at the festival which was packed with craft beer enthusiasts. Beer has not been sold at the festival for over 20 years.

Frank M. Flower Oyster Company, another big sponsor donates all the oysters. Besides oysters to eat there were clams, lobster, chowders, corn, mac & cheese, and food from around the world, something for everyone. Besides food and drink there was plenty of good music, beautiful crafts, a tall ship to board, a pirate show, games and rides for the whole family.

Delicious lobsters!

Baymen Billy and Bobby selling clams.

It was a fun weekend for all except many locals feel it has gotten too commercialized, with sales people trying to sell you gutters for your home, and vacation packages.

Alexa Joel, Billy's daughter was supposed to make a suprise visit to the festival Sunday and shuck clams, but due to inclement weather she wasn't able to stop by.

Festive Clam and Lobster hats!

Delicious steamers.

NSHM Gala at Muttontown Country Club

Monica Randall and Barry Rivadue

BY OLIVIA EVERETT

The North Shore Historical Museum's fundraising gala was held this year at the Muttontown Country Club on a beautiful autumn evening, co- chaired by NSHM board members, Victoria Crosby and Laura Dougherty.

As guests entered the club, formerly the mansion called Chimneys, which was the home of Howard Crosby Brokow, tables of raffle baskets, with wonderful prizes, organized by board member Amy Tabor, were available for guests to bid on.

The theme of the event was celebrating mansions of the Gold Coast, and several board members and guests were in period attire, including board member Barry Rivadue, who was disguised as the fictitious character, Lord Spillington. Each table had a photo of a different North Shore mansion next to the flowers.

During the evening, guests were entertained by the band Glass Bottom Soul, with Bill Titus on guitar, Chris Crosby on bass, Adam Polatov on drums with vocalist Jeannie Bergstein

Among the guests were former Glen Cove Mayor Reggie Spinello and his lovely wife Coleen, Glen Cove Councilwoman Pam Panzenbeck, and candidate for City Council, Dr. Eve Lupenko-Ferrante.

Following a delicious buffet dinner, NSHM president Georgie Connett, welcomed guests, thanked board members for their participation in a successful event., and introduced museum director Amy Driscoll, who introduced Monica Randall, lecturer and author of books on Gold Coast mansions, who gave a fascinating talk of her time living at The Chimneys.

Dessert and coffee were served as the music continued and raffle winners presented with their prizes.

NSHM is located at 140 Glen Street in Glen Cove in the restored 1907 Court House. For further information visit northshorehistoricalmuseum.org

The Huntington Historical Society celebrated the Harvest with its annual Apple Festival on Sunday, October 20th, at the historic Kissam House, The festival took place on the grounds of the Kissam House, one of four national register historic properties maintained by the Society built in.

The Society's most popular family event, the Apple Festival features a variety of fall festivities including traditional games, seasonal crafts, live music, and historical demonstrations by costumed interpreters. Visitors dove into history by going on a tour of the 18th century Kissam House, or watched traditional folk artists like woodworkers and musicians demonstrate their craft. Children tried their hand at making their own like full-sized scarecrows and painted pumpkins. There were numerous games, races, bubbles, and face painting, as well as the very popular hayride around the property! Delicious Long Island-grown apples were sold by the bag along with other fall food favorites, such as candy apples, apple cider, and an assortment of baked goods from local bakeries. And shopping at the Museum Shop with its many treasures, collectibles and antiques was great.

The Order of the Ancient and Honorable Huntington Militia were on hand to give an exciting demonstration firing their muskets, cannon drills and firings. People were able to talk with the men at arms about how they train and what they are preparing for in the future.

NSLA Wine Auction Fall Fete

It was a wonderful evening at the NSLA Wine Fete!

The North Shore Land Alliance held their 16th annual Wine Auction Fall Fete on Saturday, October 5th at Groton Farm in Old Westbury. Over 400 guests were in attendance, many of whom wore bold animal prints and floral patterns as a tribute the theme of the evening: "Into the Wild."

"This year we really wanted to celebrate protected habitat, the natural home of plants and animals," said Lisa Ott, Land Alliance President & CEO. "Humanity has wiped out 60 percent of mammals, birds, reptiles and fish since 1970. Habitat loss poses the greatest threat to species. By protecting open space we are helping preserve the habitat and biodiversity found on the North Shore of Long Island."

Groton Farm is a 108-acre preserved estate owned by Land Alliance trustees Luis and Julie Rinaldini. The Rinaldinis co-founded the Land Alliance 16 years ago along with several other community members. Guests entered the farm under a blanket of stars and bid on a robust selection of wines in the barn area before heading into a heated tent for a delicious dinner catered by Sterling Affair. Beautiful flowers and plants, wood coasters, pine cones and mini gold-painted animals were among the décor that brought the theme of the evening full circle. Live and silent auction items included a trip to Napa Valley and a five-night stay in Deer Valley. The party continued into the early morning hours thanks to a DJ and dancefloor in an upstairs barn loft.

Kennedy: "Bellone has been AWOL on LIPA"

By Rahul Andrade

A tax reassessment lawsuit by the Long Island Power Authority ("LIPA") threatens to bankrupt the Town of Huntington, Village of Northport and the Northport School District.

But incumbent County Executive Steve Bellone (D-Babylon) has been "doing nothing,"according to challenger, Suffolk County Comptroller John Kennedy (R-Smithtown).

Huntington has been fighting LIPA to prevent the potentially devastating reassessment, filing lawsuits before the Supreme Court to stop LIPA.

John Kennedy

Local officials, such as Huntington Supervisor Chad Lupinacci (R) have backed the lawsuits against LIPA. Other officials, such as NYS Sen. Jim Gaughran (D-Huntington) and NYS Assemblyman Andrew Raia (R-Huntington) have bi-partisan state legislation to stop or limit the impact of LIPA's actions. Bellone, however, has been notoriously absent during these proceedings.

Steve Bellone

"I will take action immediately," stated Kennedy. "The Governor controls the LIPA Board. Bellone brags about being close to the Governor, but he has done nothing."

"A 30% tax increase would devastate this community" stated one longtime resident of Northport. "Where is Steve Bellone - he's hiding somewhere. Bellone doesn't care about us - the middle class of Huntington and Northport."

The issue surrounds the attempted tax reassessment of LIPA's Northport powerplant. The plant provides electricity for 1.1 million residents. The power plant is assessed at $3.4 billion and pays about $84 million in property taxes annually. Those property taxes are the largest single tax payment in Huntington and are about 35% of the Northport-East Northport School District budget. If LIPA gets its way - and cuts its tax payment by over 90% - then all other residents will see huge 35%-plus tax increases to make up the difference.

In addition, LIPA is seeking a "refund" of "overpaid" past taxes amounting to $650 million, which would bankrupt the Town of Huntington, the Northport - East Northport School District and Northport Village.

LIPA is a government agency, currently headed by Ralph Suozzi - the former Glen Cove Mayor and cousin of US Congressman Tom Suozzi (D-Glen Cove). LIPA Chair Ralph Suozzi refused to return calls to comment on this issue.

Bellone appointed his Deputy County Executive Jon Kaiman last June to "mediate" between LIPA and the residents of Huntington, but has not taken sides in support of the Huntington residents. LIPA refuses to engage in the proposed mediation.

"I call on LIPA to come to the table, work with our local elected officials to come to a reasonable agreement that will be fair..." stated Kennedy. "When elected, I will get the back taxes off the table... and push forward for our residents."

IAC Meets at Glen Cove High School

The October Meeting of the IAC, Inter Agency Council, was held at the Glen Cove High School, where Assistant Superintendent Dr. Michael Israel gave a power point presentation on the bond that the Glen Cove School District is requesting. The bond issue was voted on October 22nd. There are two propositions to be voted on, however, if Proposition #1 does not pass then Proposition #2 is automatically negated. The money would be used for structural repairs and security improvements to Glen Cove's five school buildings.

The problems of the deteriorated buildings, the newest was built in 1966, are only getting worse and need to be repaired for the safety of the children and the staff. A member of the Senior Center was reported to have said that the ceilings of the school were falling in the 1990s and, for the sake of safety, she votes yes.

The community bond forum took place on October 16th, 7pm at the Glen Cove High School.

Kathie Flynn reported on the Census 2020, which she said is really important to get a complete count to bring money into the community. The Census should be completed by every household, it can be done online, by phone or mail. The information helps to determine how federal funding is used.

($675 Billion) and will bring needed funds into Glen Cove for our schools, roads, public programs etc. See HWCLI.com. for more information on the Census. IAC is open to non-profits and other human service agencies.

The next IAC meeting will be on Wednesday November 13 at 9am at St. Rocco's Church. The topic will be immigrants and Census 2020.

Bayville's Rev. Michael Sniffen lectures on Gothic Style

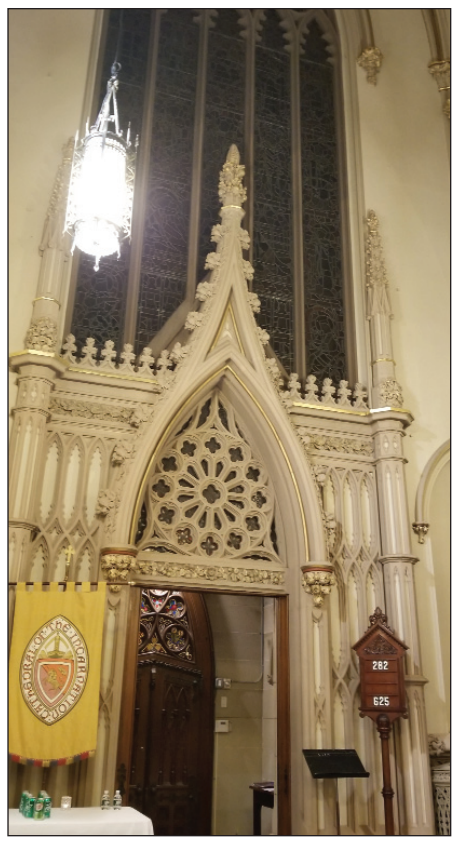
Sharply pointed spires.

Rev. Michael Sniffen

By Victoria Crosby

The Very Rev. Michael Sniffen, Dean of the Cathedral of the Incarnation in Garden City, gave a very interesting presentation on Gothic Architecture at the cathedral recently, titled The Gothic Imagination: Wonder and Inspiration from Notre Dame to Garden City.

Dean Sniffen grew up in Bayville, where his family still resides, and was the curate at St John's of Lattingtown many years ago. He recently completed his Ph.D at Drew University in Liturgical Studies with his dissertation on Gothic power, performance and imagination.



Beautiful arches.

Even though it was a very rainy night, a large audience attended. While enjoying refreshments first then a power point lecture on the history of the town of Garden City, and the cathedral, which was built as a memorial to Alexander Stewart by his widow Cornelia. Steward was known as the "merchant prince" as he was a very successful owner of department stores. Stewart died in 1876 the third richest man is the world, after Cornelius Vanderbilt and William Astor. The cathedral officially opened in 1885.

The Gothic style is similar to many European churches. The spire is over 200 feet high and is visible from miles around.

The cathedral's organ, the largest on Long Island, was built by Casavant Frères Limitée, and was installed in the building in 1986. The Cathedral of the Incarnation has been on the National Register of Historic Places since 1978. For further information on the cathedral visit incarnationgc.org

GRENVILLE BAKER BOYS & GIRLS CLUB

Healthy Habits

At Grenville Baker Boys & Girls Club, a big part of helping young people reach their full potential is teaching them the keys to a healthy life. An understanding of how to make smart nutritional choices is essential. Our Club's Healthy Habits program and other Club-wide initiatives give our members the tools and resources they need. Our Building Great Futures construction project will enhance this programming while helping to broaden its impact.

As part of our Healthy Habits program, we encourage our members to sit down to a "healthy plate" at every meal and to make informed choices about what they eat. We help them to increase their consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grains, while limiting their intake of foods high in calories, salt and sugar. Beverages like low fat milk and plenty of water are recommended to ensure proper hydration over energy drinks and sodas that may be high in empty calories. Balance and moderation are important habits to develop at a young age that can carry through to adulthood.

In order to achieve these goals, we have taken a proactive approach to nutrition at the Club. In addition to teaching about nutrition, last year we removed vending machines from the building to eliminate the temptations of soda, candy and chips. Instead, we provide water flavored with slices of fresh fruit throughout the day. We have also added a healthy snack during Homework Help that includes veggies and dip, fruit, cheese, crackers and other nutritious choices. At 5:30 PM, our kids are offered a balanced meal supplied by Long Island Cares. The meals vary throughout the week and incorporate a protein, a carbohydrate, a fruit, a vegetable, and milk,providing the calories and nutrients needed by growing children.

Another important piece of learning about healthy eating at the Club is our cooking program.

To encourage our kids to limit the amount of fast food they eat each week, we recognize that young people need to learn the ABCs of cooking simple, healthy and economic meals for themselves and their families. As part of our Building Great Futures project, we will be able to improve on this program with the addition of a professional teaching kitchen. The Kitchen willbe dedicated to the memory of Michael Maroni, a loyal Club alumnus who owned and founded Maroni's of Northport, one of Long Island's finest restaurants. The Club's Maroni Kitchen will give kids a chance to gain hands on training as they learn the basics in the kitchen. It will include commercial appliances, a teaching island, and overhead mirrors. Classes in healthy eating and cooking skills will open our kids' eyes to the culinary arts and other potential careers. The kitchen will be designed to ensure the safety of our young chefs.

Combining a knowledge of nutrition and cooking with a proper balance of physical fitness and positive relationships, members of our Club will be well on their way to reaching their full potential and to enjoying a healthy life.

North Shore Schools 2019 Homecoming Celebration!

The North Shore Vikings take to the field.

It was a gorgeous autumn day for the North Shore Schools 2019 Homecoming Celebration on Saturday, October 19th. From toddlers to senior residents, the Homecoming Fan Fest offered something fun for everyone! Thank you to the entire North Shore community for making this day a huge success! In addition, congratulations to the NS Vikings Football team for triumphing over Mineola, 33-6!

To kick-off the day, numerous K-12 students, faculty, parents, and community members, enthusiastically participated in a wonderful Homecoming Carnival with fun games for all ages. New this year was Virtual Reality, Chalk the Walk, and Surf Sensation which were all a big hit! Other favorites included inflatables, face painting, a photo booth, the obstacle course, DJ, hula-hoop games, tug-of-war, and much more! For hours, children of all ages and adults happily engaged in the numerous fun activities. Throughout the day.

The band entertained the crowd.

During the Homecoming Fan Fest, you could see the joy on everyone's faces as everyone joined in the fun. A big "thank you" goes out to the Athletic Booster Club members who grilled delicious food for everyone to enjoy and worked hard at the concession stand. Cheers to the Parent Organizations along with high school classes who sold various North Shore merchandise in support of our schools and programs. Also, many thanks to the Homecoming Committee, the parent associations, the Arts Angels, the Athletic Booster Club, Kiwanis Club, Board of Education, administrators, and members of the SGO and NS Key Club for a wonderful day!

Cheering at its best!
